WHAT YOUR CHILD IS LEARNING

This pack teaches your child to put story events in order — what happens first, next, and last. Ordering events is the first step toward retelling a story, an important early reading skill. The pages grow step by step: naming first, next, and last; putting mixed-up pictures in order; choosing what happens next; sequencing a story read aloud; and ordering a four-step story with cut-and-paste numbers.

ANSWERS

Page 1 — First, Next, Last

The pictures are already in order. Write 1 under the big snowball (left), 2 under the two stacked snowballs (middle), and 3 under the finished snowman (right).

Page 2 — Put the Story in Order

Left to right, the numbers are 3, 1, 2. First (1) the muddy puppy by the empty tub (middle), next (2) the puppy in the soapy bath (right), last (3) the clean puppy in the towel (left).

Page 3 — What Happens Next?

Circle the middle picture: the big bubble floating in the air. The scooter and the book do not finish the bubble story.

Page 4 — Sequence a Short Story

Page 5 — My Story Sequence

Tip: After each page, ask your child to tell the story back: “First... next... last...”
